Stone Type

When selecting a memorial it is important that climatic conditions are considered. Recently our province has suffered the effect of significant wind driven rain. Experts anticipate that in the coming decades this trend will increase.

Funeral Services Northern Ireland use only the finest granites selected from sites throughout the world.

Granite is an igneous rock, unequalled in its ability to withstand exposure to the elements.

The Swatches

Black Granite:

From Africa, India, and the Far East usually has a polished finish and is embellished with gold or silver letters and ornamentation as selected.

Dark Grey Granite:

From South Africa and the Far East, is normally polished and finished like Black Granite.

Balmoral Red Granite:

From Finland, has a deep colour which is very attractive with either gold or silver lettering.

Blue Pearl Granite:

From Norway is becoming increasingly popular. Gold or silver lettering bring out the colour in this beautiful Arctic stone.

Tan Brown Granite:

Other colours of granite are available. The colours illustrated above are, in our experience most suitable due to their ability to retain the legibility of inscriptions longer.

Caring is at the heart of our approach

Each of our funeral homes has been serving their local community for many years – some for over a century and in many funeral homes, members of the original families continue to be involved.

Our combined expertise and resources mean we can provide very high standards of care and support before and during the funeral.
